

Viandrie Robertson

Viandrie Robertson is currently an LLM researcher at the South African Research Chair in Cities, Law and Environmental Sustainability. She graduated with a Bachelor of Commerce with Law (Bcom LLB) and Bachelor of Laws (LLB), both at Nelson Mandela University, South Campus. She was a Legal Practitioners Fidelity Fund Bursary recipient, which enabled her to complete her LLB degree.

She completed her A1 level language level for conversational German. She spent her vacations working part time at law firms and took on the role of a paralegal while still a student. She has also gained practical experience in the Nelson Mandela University Law clinic where she actively took on clients and aided them in their legal.

She has devoted much of her time as an activist for climate change and participated in beach clean ups and other environmental related volunteer work. She is passionate about conservation of natural fauna and flora, especially in the Garden Route area where the local wildlife is being damaged by urban migration.
